

This practice was fairly simple, but I did appreciate having the opportunity to build my own code using what I've learned instead of modifying a code given to me.