

This lesson was straightforward, interesting and oddly satisfying, it showed me some of the limitations of the smart Phidgets, got me to use events so the button press will always register, and I also just enjoyed being able to push a button and see the change on the output screen.