This lesson wasn't very challenging overall, the most notable thing was that the largest number in the for loops HAD to be 10, which caused me some confusion as to why the code would just stop and not even give an error, until I realized that a number larger than 10 would when divided by 10 would give a number larger than 1, which is the max value for the duty cycle, hence nothing would happen and the code would just stop.